

Soviet Jet At McGuire Makes Eyes Pop

By MAURY ALLEN
Courier-Times Staff Writer

A red and blue streaked silver jet Russian airliner, which made eyes of U. S. fliers pop in professional envy, ground to an historic stop shortly before 11 o'clock last night at McGuire Air Force Base.

Air officers exclaimed, "She's a beauty. We've nothing like it. It's very impressive."

It was the first commercial jet transatlantic crossing in history.

The first Soviet plane to land in the United States since 1937 touched down at the New Jersey military air terminus 22 hours after leaving Moscow.

Flying time for the twin engine jet from Moscow to McGuire was announced as 13 hours and 29 minutes by Alexi Semenov, Soviet air official. He said the flight averaged 500 miles an hour for the 5,300 mile trip.

The Russian official called the trip "a flight of peace" and said he hoped it would be "a positive forecast of the beginning of regular flights between our two countries."

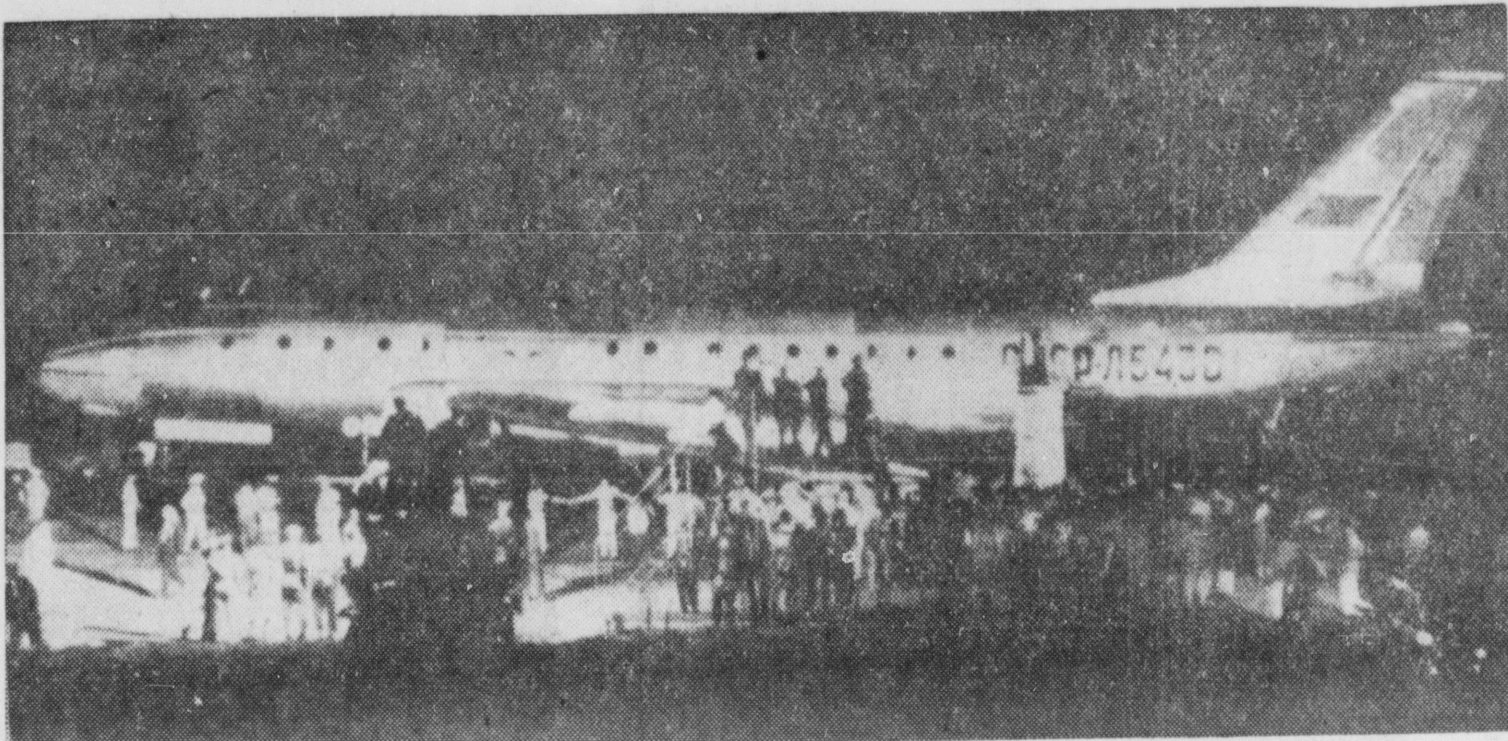

Russia is the only country with commercial jet flights. Britain inaugurated commercial jet flights in 1952 but grounded the planes after several accidents. The U. S. and France are contemplating jet service in 1959.

59 Aboard

Aboard the huge, 70-ton jet were 59 persons, including two Russian air crews of nine men each, diplomats bound for the United Nations and two tall, dark haired Russian beauties, hostesses on the flight.

Three Americans accompanied the plane from its final stop at Goose Bay, Labrador.

Capt. Harold G. Benegar, 33, of Keller, Tex., a pilot; Capt. Boris N. Dubson, 37, San Francisco, a navigator who speaks Russian, and Master Sgt. Gaylor E. Robinson, a radio operator, of Marietta, Ga., were the Americans aboard.

The American fliers never touched the controls, but were used to guide the plane through the radar net and for "advisory purposes."

Real Pros

Capt. Benegar praised the Russian pilots as "pros" and said "they were easily the equals of any American pilot."

"The plane cruised at 40,000 feet most of the way and went above the bad weather coming out of Goose Bay."

"After that the flight was routine," Capt. Benegar said.

He called the plane "a very sweet ship and something I'd like to fly."

Major Alexander de Seversky, famed American plane designer, said the jet engines were "almost twice as powerful as anything we have." The Air Base was supercharged with excitement shortly after 9 p.m. as reporters, newsreel cameramen, and still photographers began pouring into the operations center.

Crowds lined the restraining fence for two hours before the plane's arrival to get a glimpse of the Soviet jet.

Newsman and spectators grew edgy when the craft was not in sight at 10:10, which was announced as the time of arrival in an early briefing.

The excitement grew as photographers jockeyed for position.

A rain shower shortly after 10:30 sent the reporters scurrying for cover and the cameramen hustling for something to cover their machines.

Several minutes later the plane flew over the field, dipping its wings on a northwest approach.

Bensalem In Search For Arsonist

Authorities are looking for a second arsonist in the Bensalem area today after fire swept a Nottingham barn last night for the third time in less than a year. Authorities said "this blaze was definitely set."

Firefighters from six companies squelched flames in an unoccupied barn at Street Road and Windsor Drive, Nottingham Village.

Acting fire marshal Elwood Tomlinson, joined with Bensalem Township Police Chief William Riempp in saying the blaze was "definitely set." Donald Roberts, chief of Trevoze Fire Co., said no electric wiring was near the vacant barn, and "each time the (Continued on Page 3, Col. 6)

September morn — a rare one.

Little kids — and big ones, too — with footballs the tipoff. Pumpkin pie season all but here.

Marine Band here for afternoon and evening concerts at Warren Snyder School in Bristol two weeks from today, incidentally.

There'll be a distinguished musical event sponsored by Bristol Rotary every man, lady and child in Lower Bucks will want to attend.

We'll say one thing: The Congressman handled his first session like a veteran and more than justified the confidence his district placed in him.

Red jet airliner set-down at McGuire created something of a stir. First time in 20 years a Russian plane touched American soil, first time in history a commercial plane soared in.

Interesting, we think, to speculate on just how long it's going to be until regular commercial service between the U. S. and Russia is established.

Nothing interesting, however, about the way those Dodgers humiliated our Phillies last night.

Okay, tonight Robin Roberts will make all of us look good.

Sales Staff Quits Struck Company

Eleven employees of the Bristol plant of National Container Corp. have quit this week, the tenth week of the plant strike, to start their own business, a spokesman for Local 375, International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers said today.

Henry Rodgers, business agent for the union, said David Blatt, sales manager, six salesmen, two designers, and two women of the sales department are starting their own company, Franklin Container Co.

The union official said top union and company officials will meet in the New York offices of the Owens-Illinois Glass Co., of which National Container is a subsidiary, Tuesday seeking to end the strike.

The industry will produce materials for handling equipment. About 50 persons will be employed at the start. The industry is expected to get underway in November.

Arkansas Gov. Still Defies Federal Orders

Faubus Keeps Armed Guard At Mansion

By UNITED PRESS

Arkansas Gov. Orval E. Faubus remained defiant of federal school integration orders today and kept his executive mansion ringed with armed troops while the government was deciding how far it will go to force compliance with the Supreme Court's school ruling.

It was the first major showdown between a state and the federal government over the school integration issue.

The White House insisted there was no plan afoot to arrest Faubus for his refusal to integrate a Little Rock school, but the Chief Executive was taking no chances following reports Wednesday that such a plan was being considered.

Two companies of National Guardsmen, armed with pistols and rifles, guarded the executive mansion. At Central High School which was to have integrated this week, another 250 guardsmen and state troopers were on duty.

There were more tense racial situations in Kentucky and North Carolina today.

Police Open Passage

At Sturgis, Ky., 13 Negroes returned to the high school, marching through a narrow aisle between white pupils. State Police ordered them to permit the passage.

At Charlotte, N.C., a group of white boys stood on the school steps, hurling insults at Gustavus Roberts, a Negro boy, who appeared for the second day of school.

The crowd was dispersed quickly by Principal Ed Saunders who said, "let that boy in."

One of the Negroes who enrolled at Charlotte Wednesday and was spat upon and jeered failed to return today, begging "a sore throat."

Historic Fallsington Group Sets Dinner

A candlelight dinner for the benefit of Historic Fallsington, Inc., will be held at the new All Saints Episcopal Parish House in Fallsington, on Saturday evening, October 5, at 7 o'clock.

Invitations have been issued by the officers and trustees of the organization with Richard H. Howland, president of the National Trust for Historic Preservation.

Proceeding the dinner, a reception will be held at the Lippincott House, headquarters of the organization, a non-profit corporation dedicated to the preservation of the 18th century village of Fallsington.

A number of fine colonial pieces will be on exhibit in the house, including interesting items used in crafts represented by early residents — farm implements, carpenter's tools and medical equipment. Cooperating in preparation of the exhibit are Mrs. E. Linton Marton, curator of the historic Thompson-Neely House at Washington Crossing Park, and Col. John Cummings, curator of the Mercer Museum of the Bucks County Historical Society. Throughout the house will be colonial flower arrangements, created by the members of the decorating committee under the leadership of its chairman, Mrs. Henry C. Parry.

Speakers Listed

At the dinner an address will be made by the president, Ann Hawkes Hulton, and Dr. Howland, internationally-known architectural historian and speaker.

Co-chairmen of the dinner committee are Mrs. Robert Biddle, III of Dolington, and Mrs. Hugh B. Eastburn of Chestnut Hill. Serving on the committee are, Mrs. Clyde F. Brown, Levittown, Mrs. Eugene Robertson, Newtown, Mrs. George P. Millington, Philadelphia, and Mrs. David Raw, Fallsington.

The purpose of the dinner will be to raise $25,000 for the purchase and restoration of the Lippincott House.

Twp. Names Booz To Secretary Job Despite Objection

Oscar A. Booz, former Bristol Township Commissioner and Democratic leader, was named township secretary last night when Louis R. Hahn resigned the post.

Hahn, who held the $1,500-a-year job since last May, said he was involved in a new business venture and did not have the time to devote to the township.

His resignation as first submitted was dated Sept. 11, but William J. Carlin, township solicitor, ruled the commissioners could not act on it or appoint a successor until it became effective. This apparently stymied some of the commissioners, who were ready to accept the resignation and appoint a successor last night. As a result, Hahn made the resignation effective immediately.

Commissioner Albert H. Rogers nominated Booz for the post. Lawrence Mervine, one of the three Republicans on the 11-man board, nominated James D. McMenamin, of 4 Fortune Lane, Farmbrook, Levittown. Harold Lefcourt nominated Frank Lavrigatta, of Bath Road, but the nomination died when no one seconded his move.

Booz was elected by a vote of

five to three with Lefcourt abstaining. Two commissioners were absent.

Booz' appointment was immediately attacked by Mervine and Lefcourt. Both commissioners argued the board had agreed, in an executive session to hire a full time assistant to the township manager and name him secretary.

Mervine said, "I thought we were going to change our method of hiring a secretary. I never knew of this resignation and don't think it is fair for six or seven men to run this township. I abhor this kind of thinking."

In answer to a remark from Commissioner Elbert Kohl that the majority rules, Mervine said, "I thought we had a township (Continued on Page 3, Col. 4)

Fingerprint Ruling Made

WASHINGTON (UP)—The United States is getting ready to pull the rug from under one of Russia's favorite propaganda themes: U.S. fingerprinting of foreign visitors.

The newly-passed "hardship" immigration bill awaiting President Eisenhower's signature includes a provision giving the secretary of state and attorney general power to waive the McCarran-Walter Immigration Act requirement that all non-immigrant visitors to the United States be fingerprinted.

Russia and her Red satellites have complained repeatedly that the fingerprinting requirement amounted to an American iron curtain thrown up in an effort to block East-West cultural exchanges. Visits of Russian delegations to the United States have been canceled in the past ostensibly because of the provision.

The Soviets have claimed that fingerprinting is a degrading and humiliating process which should be reserved only for convicted criminals.

And It's Off To School

Mothers Shed Tears As Tots Shed Babyhood

By DICK DOUGHERTY
Courier-Times Staff Writer

Millions of mothers wiped tear-stained cheeks today and yesterday morning as many sleepy-eyed youngsters trekked off to school for the first time. Mrs. Eileen Kuzepski of Newportville was among the count. "I never thought I'd cry as I had seen other mothers do in the past," she said, wringing a damp handkerchief in her hands. "It's not seeing the kids go to school. The confusion of getting them ready is terrific," she added.

Mrs. Kuzepski started her son Jackie in the first grade at Our Lady of Grace School in Pennell.

Preparations to get Jack off to school which opened at 9 a.m. were actually underway at 7:30 a.m. Mother was up and making ready.

Jack bounded from bed a little sleepy but eager to go to school. "I want to go and get it over with," he said.

Mrs. Kuzepski worked feverishly dressing Jack and checking all details. But always trying her hardest to hold back the tears.

Clothes just right. Shoes shined. Tie in place. The big note stating the child's name, address and other important facts pinned on his shirt.

Mother continually quizzed her son. Where do you go to school? Do you know what street you live on? Are you scared? Do you know when or where to get off the bus?

The questions flowed and Jack assured his mother things would be alright. She kissed him before washing his face for about the fifth time.

"Kiss me again," Jack said. "You washed the other one off."

Big Day

Jack, along with Mother, brother Bob, grandma and others finally made it to the school. Many mothers were standing around as the children were lined up according to size and marched off to a new life, in another world.

Mothers continued to wave hands and dry tears in the same motion. The children were put in a ground level room and anxious mothers rushed to the windows for another look at their babies.

Hours passed like years. It was half an hour before bus time and already mothers were looking up the road for the school bus.

Finally the large yellow caravan appeared and tears united mothers with sons and daughters again.

The bus driver has extra problems the first few days. "You have to check the first and second graders for awhile. They usually take afternoon naps and it's hard to break the habit. Sometimes I find a youngster or so that has fallen asleep in a seat," the driver said.

Jack jumped from the big step on the bus and shouted, "boy oh boy, what a ride!"

The questions again flowed like running water. How did you like it? What did you do? How many children did you know? What room are you in? Others had Jack just rambling with a rundown of the day's events.

After things slowed down Jack said, "Did you miss me?"

There had been times this past summer when his mother had thought she wouldn't. Now she knew better. She hugged him tight.

Booz Named As Secretary In Township

manager form of government. Are we going to have bi-partisan support of the manager?"

During the meeting, Lefcourt asked the manager, Henry J. Rolfe, Jr., for comment. Rolfe said he knew nothing of the pending appointment. He agreed the board had discussed hiring a full time assistant but said he did not have anyone in mind for the job at present.

After the meeting, Lefcourt stated, "This was a black night for Bristol Township. A handful of selfish minded individuals, in face of the manager who knew nothing of what was happening, hired another part-time, political secretary." Lefcourt added that rather than hire a part time person the board had agreed to turn the secretary's duties over to a clerk in the manager's office.

"The secretary is only needed to sign checks. We need a qualified man who can be of actual assistance to the manager, not a political job holder," Lefcourt said.

For Booz this was completion of a Booz. He served as secretary in 1954 and 1955 after his term as commissioner expired and Booz was defeated for reelection. Booz was also chairman of the Democratic Organization at the same time.

He lost the party chairmanship and secretary job at the same time, when an opposing Democratic faction seized control. Thomas F. Coman, one of the leaders of the faction, was named secretary in Booz's place. Coman and several of his backers were removed by the commissioners last spring.

Little Rock

Negro, a rope around the neck, was found on a school yard on Wednesday night.

At Arlington, Va., five Negroes were turned away today when they applied for admission to two all-white schools. An orderly crowd of about 300 white pupils watched the incident.

Big Crowd Forms

At Little Rock, an estimated 1,500 white persons were milling about in front of Central High School by 10:30 a.m. e.d.t. Troops again were deployed about the building, ready to turn back any would-be integrationists.

But school started at 11:05 a.m. without any sign of the eight Negroes who were turned back on Wednesday.

Lt. Col. Marion Johnson, commanding the 250 National Guardsmen and state police at Central High, escorted reporter Benjamin Fine of the New York Times away from a crowd of whites.

Johnson agreed to let Fine return to interviewing persons in front of the school if he talked to them one at a time, by themselves.

Faubus Wednesday night wired President Eisenhower in Newport, R.I., that he feared federal agents planned to "arrest by force the head of a sovereign state."

He also told Eisenhower he had reason to believe wires to the executive mansion had been tapped.

Mayor Crawford Mann of Little Rock, accused Faubus of perpetrating a "hoax" as a "political design of his own."

The Justice Department's formal intervention in the Arkansas case indicated the federal government meant to show it would not back down in its efforts to implement the Supreme Court's desegregation rulings.

No Escort Planned

Officials in the department denied, however, that U.S. marshals would escort Negro students through National Guard lines today.

The showdown with Faubus, when it comes, will be a legal one, Justice Department officials made it clear. On the basis of information collected by the FBI and made available to Davies, he could initiate contempt charges against persons who "interfered" with his court orders to integrate.

While Negro students in Little Rock could not even get into the school buildings Wednesday, Negroes in Charlotte, N.C., and other southern cities did get inside their schools, but usually in atmospheres charged with racial tension.

Integration in Charlotte was begun under near-riot conditions. Dorothy Geraldine Counts, 15, walked into Harding High School through a crowd of several hundred booing and screaming persons.

Statement Made Denying Allegations

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Executive Board of the Teamsters Union denied AFL-CIO charges today that the Teamsters are dominated by corrupt influences. But it promised to start a clean-up drive at the annual convention starting in Miami Beach, Fla., on Sept. 30.

The Teamsters answer to the CIO-AFL charges was given in the three-page statement handed to newsmen just before Executive Board members went before the AFL-CIO Ethical Practices Committee for a hearing.

The closed, two-day hearing at AFL-CIO headquarters was almost an hour late getting started.

Teamster President Dave Beck, his heir apparent, Vice President James R. Hoffa, and eight other top Teamster officials attended.

The AFL-CIO accusations were based largely on accusations by the Senate Rackets Committee that Beck used union funds for his own personal profit and that Hoffa gained power with the help of gangsters and racketeers.

The Teamsters-high command said the union has more than 800 locals, 3,000 local officers and 1,500,000 members and "no group of individuals can so dominate its affairs" to justify charges of corrupt domination.

"Without attempting to summarize the allegations," their three-page statement said, "it appears that none of them are of such magnitude as to support a belief that the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, as an entity, is 'dominated, controlled or substantially influenced in the conduct of its affairs by a corrupt influence.'"

The statement said the Teamsters Executive Board has no intention of taking action against any official which would prejudice his rights under the U.S. Constitution or federal law.

Beck is under indictment on charges of income tax evasion. Hoffa has been indicted on wire-tapping charges. Vice President Frank W. Brewster has been convicted of contempt of Congress and Vice President Elmer O. Mohn faces the same charge.

Indecency Is Charged

A Levittown man was arrested by Bristol Township police early this morning on charges of public indecency.

He is Robert J. Casey, 27, of 6 Keystone Lane, Kenwood, Levittown. He was arrested shortly after midnight by Patrolman Aaron Kelton, on information supplied by three young girls.

The girls said they were sitting on a bench along the Levittown Parkway about 4 p.m. yesterday when a man answering Casey's description drove by in his car and exposed himself to them.

The girls, aged eight, 14 and 15, said the man drove past several times. They called police and gave Kelton a description of the car. The description led to Casey.

He will be given a hearing on the charge 1 p.m. Saturday before JP Rene Tritschler, of Croydon.

Bristol Resident Held On Morals Charges

A 20-year-old Bristol resident was held in $500 bail last night on charges of fornication and bastardy, brought by a 20-year-old Lincolnia girl.

Matthew Walker, of 428 Pond St., was taken before Justice of the Peace Josephine Morris, Bensalem Township and held in bail for the next term of Bucks County Courts. He was released in his own custody.

NOTE OF HUMOR

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UP)—A note of humor evolved from Wednesday's tense integration crisis when National Guardsmen surrounding Central High School asked a small boy why he was afraid to come to school. His reason: "Latin."

Suicide Curve Sign To Go Up Again

SHENANDOAH, Pa. (UP)—Determined officials in nearby Gilberton borough said they would erect another traffic sign today, similar to the one removed by the State Highway Department earlier in the week.

The original sign, containing the words "warning! suicide curve," was put up by the borough last Saturday on the dangerous Frackville Hill, the main highway between Shenandoah and Frackville.

On Sunday, police commissioner John Thomas found the sign was gone. It had been donated by a relative of a man killed in a triple fatality at the site eight years ago.

Thomas, at first, thought the sign had been stolen but the State Highway Department later admitted they took it down because the borough had no permission to erect it.

Officials said they would put up another sign today, but further back off of state highway property.

At least 12 persons have been killed and hundreds injured in the past few years at the site.

Water Rates Discussed

The big question at Langhorne Borough Council's meeting last night was, "Will we get better water service?"

The point arose when representatives of the Langhorne Spring Water Company and their public utilities consultant appeared at the meeting to give their reasons for the proposed water rate hike.

Henry E. Fick, consultant from Harrisburg, presented council with records and reports on a $6,000 study made on water rates in the area. He said the rising costs have made it necessary to increase water rates.

The new rates would go into effect Oct. 1, if approved by the Public Utilities Commission, Harrisburg.

Councilmen heard the evidence and agreed among themselves that "We don't think anyone objects to the increase if we get the service we need and are paying for."

Soon As Possible

Mr. Fick, along with water company officers, President Thomas C. Aylward and Secretary-Treasurer J. Hibbs Buckman, Jr., told council that better service costs money for more wells, and will come along "just as soon as we can get money together to provide the service."

The consultant said the company has sunk several wells within the last few years, which were found to be dry holes. "There's where it hurts service," he said, "what are you going to do when you try and come up with something like that?"

The PUC law states that a Pennsylvania utility is entitled to a fair return according to the values of the property. Mr. Fick said, "Any company operating at a loss," he said, "is required to file with the PUC supporting data to back up a proposed rate change to operate in the black."

Confederate Soldier Is Laid To Rest

LAUREL HILL, Fla. (UP)—Confederate soldier William Allen Lundy was laid to rest in the red clay of the South he loved Wednesday, leaving only two living veterans of the Civil War.

A U.S. Army honor guard fired three volleys into the overcast sky as the coffin of the grizzled old soldier was lowered into its grave in a little rural cemetery near the home of his sons, where he spent the last of his 109 years.

Lundy, who served with the Alabama home guard during the closing days of the Civil War, when he was 16, died Sunday night in a Crestview Hospital.

Brother Shot To Death After Feud

OIL CITY, Pa. (UP)—Bad feeling between two brothers came to a violent end Wednesday night when one shot and killed the other and then took his own life.

The wife of the slayer was shot and wounded critically.

State police said Philip Rodgers, 50, left his home on Route 8 in Cherry Tree Twp., six miles from here, and walked across the highway into his younger brother's trailer. He carried a 16-gauge pump shotgun.

Philip's wife, Doris, mother of two grown children, was in the trailer.

The older brother blasted away at his wife and younger brother, Eugene, 42, a bachelor, then walked back across the highway to his home and killed himself, setting off the trigger with a yardstick, troopers said.

Mrs. Rodgers was taken to Oil City Hospital with chest, arm, hand and possible internal injuries.

State police said Eugene had lived with Philip and his wife until last Memorial Day when Philip ordered him out of the house. Mrs. Rodgers told her husband that if Eugene left, she also would leave.

Both subsequently left the house, troopers said. Mrs. Rodgers went to live with a son-in-law and daughter not far from the scene of the shooting.

Husband Is Held On Battery Charge

Rodney Robinson, 18, of 2109 Liberator St., Bristol, was committed to Bucks County Prison yesterday on an assault and battery charge.

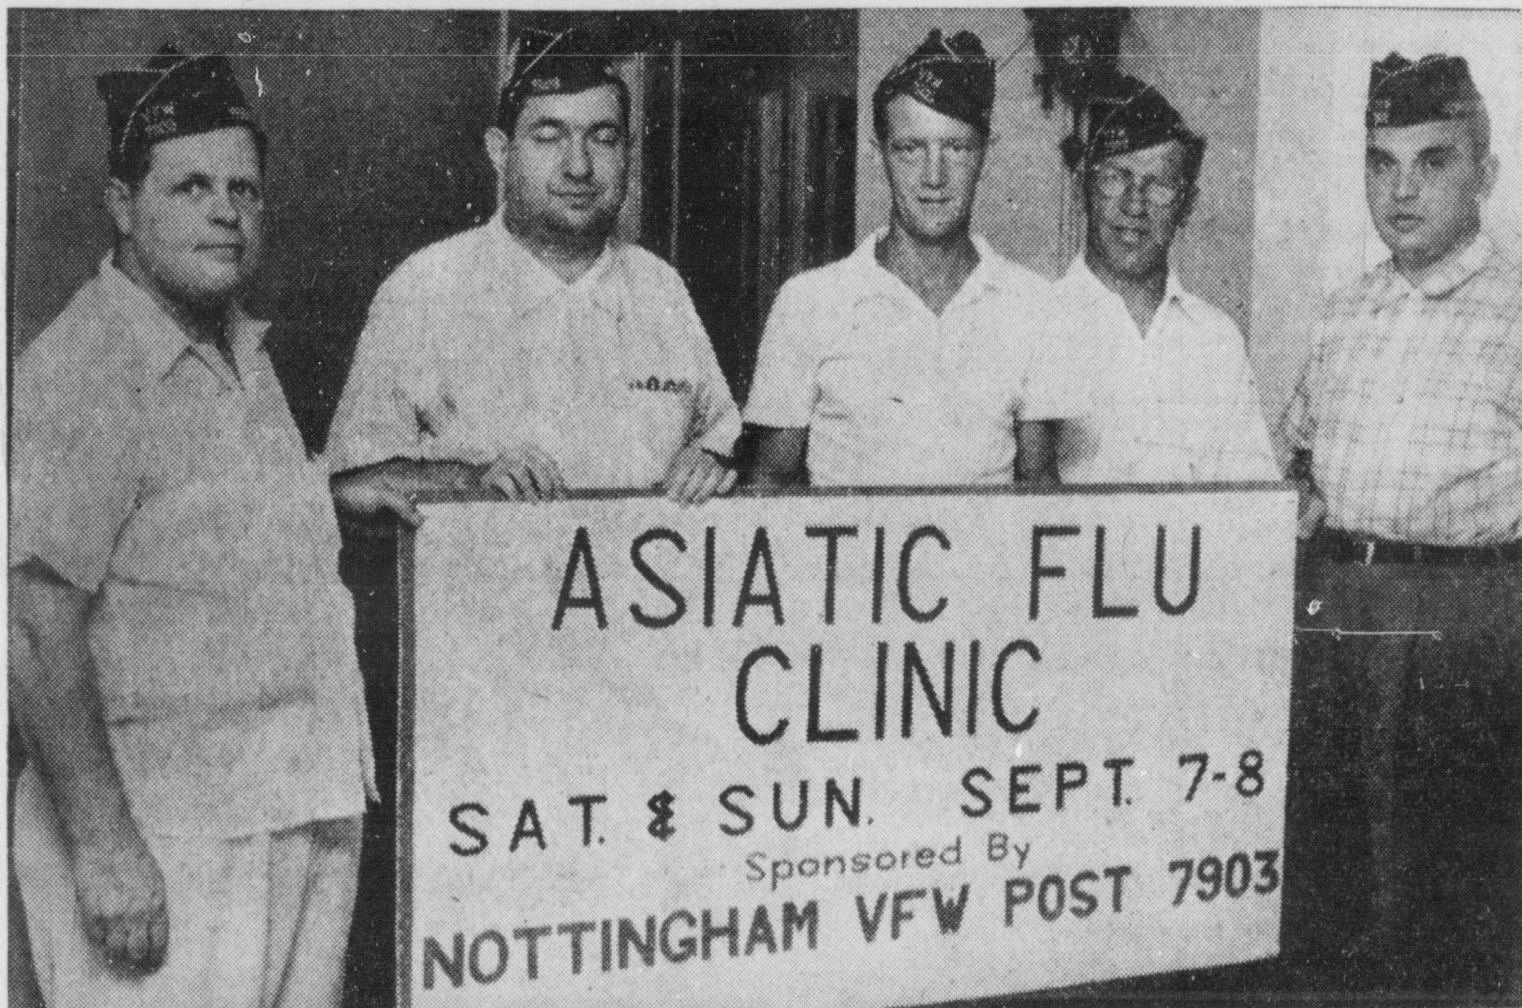

Robinson is being held for trial by Justice of the Peace Leon Milnor, Newtown.

Nottingham Picked As Club Name

The Nottingham Democratic Club was officially named at a special executive meeting recently.

The name was chosen from several suggested names at a meeting Friday. Purpose of the meeting was to obtain a larger site for the general membership meeting, slated for 8 p.m., Friday.

The meeting will be held at the Dudley farm, on Richlieu Road, north of Street Road, Bensalem Township. Chairman of the organization, T. W. Donovan, 3804 Dresher Road, Nottingham, said the unit hopes to get a prominent township Democrat to speak at the meeting.

Also planned for future activities are quarterly social get-togethers and bi-monthly membership meetings.

"Since the club's inception," Mr. Donovan said, "many requests for information concerning membership have been received. Anyone interested in membership can contact Bob Donnelly at MEcury 9-4179 or any committee member."

"We've had an unexpected number of membership requests," the chairman said, "and that's why we needed a larger meeting place."

Middletown Acts To Widen Road

Middletown Township Board of Supervisors last night voted to draw up specifications for the widening of Frosty Hollow Road, between Bristol Oxford Valley Road and Route 413.

The project will be contracted by a private construction firm. The supervisors plan to have it done while the county is having a new bridge installed on the road over Mill Creek.

The road is closed now and probably won't be open until November.

At the same time the supervisors accepted a petition with more than 80 names requesting that a traffic light be installed at Frosty Hollow Road and Route 413.

Joseph O. Canby, chairman of the board, said the request will be forwarded to the State Highway Department who will conduct a survey and decide whether a light is needed there.

In other business the supervisors agreed to share the cost of the special official census of township residents which starts today. The cost of the census is estimated at $2,500. The school board which arranged for the census will also pay half.

Angus T. Johnson, township manager, reported the latest township street map would be ready for sale soon. The board voted to sell the maps for $2 and to give maps to police, fire and rescue units that serve the area. Also the school district and four boroughs within the township will be given complimentary copies.

Paving Job

Johnson reported that the state highway department reported the dirt surfaced Bristol-Oxford Valley Road, will be paved no later than Oct. 15.

Johnson said $9,049 was received in building and zoning permit fees last month. Included in the permits issued was one for a $100,000 restaurant going up on Route 1 at Route 413.

Republican Organization Shies From White House

WASHINGTON (UP)—An insider's view of last week's Wisconsin senatorial election is that the Republican Party is utterly disorganized from the top down.

Not merely disorganized in Wisconsin but, disorganized in all directions from the White House to the most remote election precincts. Political events are likely to flow from that judgment. It is an opinion widely held among congressional Republicans who were party figures before President Eisenhower entered politics.

Event No. 1 is likely to be a move by congressional Republicans — the regulars — to take over conduct of next year's congressional election campaign, including finances. That is in the works although the final decision to go it alone has not been made. It is not the kind of political maneuver which would be ballyhooed to the public by formal and specific announcement.

More likely, the word would be passed through political channels to the grass roots, especially to the Republicans who might be expected to shower down with campaign contributions. The word would be: That the two legislative campaign committees — senator and congressional — would undertake to mastermind the 1958 congressional campaign, collect and distribute party funds and shape party policies, by-passing as far as possible both the White House and the Republican National Committee.

This strategy began to take form as the bad news finally was noted up on the day after Wisconsin's senatorial polling. It represents the political thinking of some Republican congressional veterans who are convinced that there is not now a useful coat tail in a car load of Eisenhower administration policies.

Politics is a complex, demanding profession to be mastered, if at all, by hard work and experience from the precincts up. The old Republican pros around town with master's degrees accuse the White House of responsibility for what they regard as the utter disorganization of the Republican Party.

Such sentiment was developing even before last week's defeat of Wisconsin's Republican senatorial nominee by a Democrat who consistently had been a political loser in that state.

Rotary Club To Hear Argentine Newsmen

The Morrisville Rotary Club will entertain an Argentine newspaperman at its meeting tonight at Pennsbury Inn.

He will address the club on "Journalism in South America" at the session starting at 6:15 p.m.

William Hahn, president of the club, will preside over the meeting.

Pennsbury System Begins Record Year

The largest enrollment in the school system's history, the largest teaching staff, and a new high school highlighted the opening of the Pennsbury School system today.

Medill Bair, regional superintendent of the Pennsbury Schools, said 8,500 students reported to the 11 Pennsbury Schools, topping last year's enrollment by 600.

Of the students, 5,700 were in the elementary system and 2,800 were in the secondary system.

The Pennsbury Schools began the "two, two, two" system with 11th and 12th graders in the Pennsbury High School, 9th and 10th graders in the Boshn School, and 7th and 8th graders in the William Penn School.

Mr. Bair said 363 professional employees are in this year's staff including the system's first Negro teacher.

Eleanor I. Moore, formerly of Cleveland, Ohio, now living in Yardley, will teach fifth and sixth grades at the Edgewood School, Woodside.
